

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a method and a system for at least partly automated book keeping through 5 a communication network such as the Internet. According to the inventive method data forwarded over Internet representing instructions for at least one transaction to be used in a banking service application is also used in an account service application.

05700504-021203